Rajbir Singh, who is husband of complainant Arpanpreet Kaur and evading the police arrest, said his wife had filed a complaint against him and other family members with Child and Woman Support Unit SSP, on July 8.

On the same day, the police lodged a case of dowry harassment against him, his father Harjit Singh, brothers Jagdeep, Amandeep Singh and other family members, he alleged.

Four family members of Rajbir Singh including a 'minor', were arrested in the wee hours of Sunday.

A senior police official, however, said the boy used to beat up the girl frequently and was even diagnosed to be mentally imbalanced by doctors in Amritsar. He had seen the doctor on the insistence of his in laws.

"We recieved the complaint a few days back and his wife did not want any reconciliation. So we registered a case without calling them," he said, adding that they asked them to produce any certificate of one accused being a minor but they could not do it.

Rajbir said according to norms, after receiving a dowry harassment complaint the police must be inform the opposite party and organise a meeting between the two. .

But in this case, the police didn't inform the opposite party or give a single call to Rajbir Singh and his any family member, he alleged.

Sources said that a DSP level officer posted in the CBI Sector 30, who is a cousin of the complainant, allegedly used his influence for registering the case. All the arrested were sentenced to one day police custody on Sunday.
